Dexcowin and Vector Announce New Model Release

October 10, 2017 – In a confidential settlement, Dexcowin agreed to jointly stipulate to dismiss its lawsuit against Aribex. This settlement clears the way for Dexcowin to continue providing high-quality, high-value products to the market.

Dexcowin and Vector are pleased to announce the upgraded MAXRAY (2.0):

- Improved battery – hard-wired, high capacity (500 shots – double the capacity of our current model) to reduce the frequency of replacement.
- Magnetic charging for longer lasting, fully charged, and ready to use battery.
- Increased kV – for improved penetration power, better image quality, especially with low-sensitivity sensors, x-Ray film & PSP users.
- Dual exposure buttons with selector for left-hand or right-hand operation.
- Take advantage of the Camera-Style design – Complimentary Neck Strap that reduces arm strain by distributing weight over your shoulders and neck.

Current models will be available until October 14, 2017. New model version will be listed at the same price and item number as current model. Watch for new products with upgraded features and cutting-edge design – coming soon!

About us – Dexcowin Co. Ltd. was established in 2004 shortly after its original founder and R&D team initially invented the world’s first battery-powered, hand-held, portable x-ray device in 2002. Since then, Dexcowin has been providing innovative solutions to the dental, veterinarian and security markets with a wide variety of hand-held, portable x-ray devices. Dexcowin’s technologies are used by the State Department, Department of Defense and dental universities.

Vector R & D Inc., established in 2001, has been partnering with manufacturers to bring innovative, high-quality, and high-value products to dentists. Vector R & D partnered with Dexcowin in 2008 to market, distribute and service the MAXRAY in the United States. Vector R & D is a distributor of MAXRAY and IRIDIUM DENTAL brands.
